

THE HARRIED LEISURE CLASS

Staffan B. Linder

"Staffan B. Linder's witty and sophisticated tract amounts to a refreshingly subversive assault upon one of his profession's best nourished sacred cows — the benefits of economic growth. . . I never thought the day would come, but it has. I recommend without reservation a book by an economist. Read it with the television and hi-fi turned off and your family otherwise occupied. But do not deny yourself a brandy and a good cigar. Here I think that I can speak for the author." — Robert Lekachman in The New York Times Book Review

"I greatly recommend THE HARRIED LEISURE CLASS. It combines precise economic analysis with good writing and brilliant insight." — John Kenneth Galbraith

"One reviewer can assure Dr. Linder that reading the opening chapters of his book should be deemed, on either material or spiritual grounds, a splendid allocation of precious time." — Fortune

"If you do not understand why, despite all our marvelous technology, the quality of life keeps on declining, do find time to read this Swedish economist's answers. They will chill you." — Book of the Month Club News

Columbia University Press
New York and London

ISBN: 0 231 08649 0

Printed in U.S.A.

Were you explicitly referring to this book
during our conver

Maxine Rodoff

NOV 11 1977

Online New York/Que - N.Y.

It seems to me there would be a substantial market for leisure - entertainment review - advertising - reservations.

Imagine being able to call up -- I mean search and retrieve -- current information and detailed commentary on the events in the N.Y. area.
Including consumer votes and commen tary.

Thinking of consumer advice brings up an obvious extension to the sort of thing that Consumer Reports now does

Obviously the subscription would pay for itself with one use!

(* replace Yellow Pages with a combination of identified advertising and particip [endor and critic]
commentary.)